

Style rules

Version 2.0 · August 2026 · goodmanagement.co.uk

These rules govern every page on the site — home, testimonials, contact, and every article. They exist so that pages built at different times by different people still look like one company. Where a rule and a preference conflict, the rule wins.

1. Colour

INK #111C30	BLUE #1F3A70	BODY #4F5763	MUTED #8A94A6	TINT #F6F8FB	RULE #E4E7EC
COLOUR	USED FOR		NEVER USED FOR
Ink	The logo. Dark footer panels. Nothing else.		Headings or body text — at size it reads as black.
Blue	All headings, buttons, links, interface type.		Large areas of background.
Body	Paragraphs, FAQ answers, article text.		Headings.
Muted	Captions, category tags, footnotes.		Anything that must be read carefully.
Tint	Panel and card backgrounds, alternating bands.		Full-page background — the site is white.

Two navies is deliberate, not an accident. Ink for the mark, Blue for type. Applying Ink to headings flattens the page and is the most likely mistake.

2. Typography

Three roles, two typefaces. The geometric face must be the same stack as the logo, so that if a browser falls back, the mark and the headings fall back together.

ROLE	FACE	APPLIED TO
Display	Geometric, regular weight (400)	All headings, page titles, card titles
Reading	Serif	Body copy, intros, FAQ answers, all articles
Interface	Geometric, uppercase, tracked 1.2px	Navigation, buttons, tags, "read more"

Section heading, 26px

Question or card title, 16px

Body copy is set in the serif at 15px with generous line height. Anything a visitor reads at length uses this — the blog is the whole point of the site, so reading comfort outranks visual novelty.

Rules

- Headings are always weight 400. Never bold — bold geometric fights the light-weight logo.
- Prose never exceeds 72 characters per line, or roughly 610px.

- Interface type is always uppercase and tracked. Sentence-case buttons break the system.
- Never more than two heading levels visible in one screen.

3. Layout and spacing

MEASURE	VALUE
Page width	860px maximum
Prose width	610px maximum, centred
Section padding	58px top and bottom (44px on mobile)
Card gap	22px
Breakpoint	700px — one breakpoint only

Sections alternate white and tint to separate ideas. Hairline rules divide items within a list. Do not use both a tint and a rule on the same edge.

4. The logo

- Five files exist: primary, reverse, stacked, reverse stacked, and white panel. Use the right one; never recolour a file by hand.
- On white, use the primary. On Ink or a dark photograph, use the reverse. Below 700px, swap to the stacked file — do not scale the wide one down.
- Clear space around the mark: at least the height of one capital letter on every side.
- Never stretch it, never add a drop shadow, never set it at an angle, never place it on a busy part of an image.
- Minimum width 220px for the wide version, 160px for the stacked version.

The wordmark is supplied as outlined vector paths, not live text, so it renders identically everywhere with no font dependency. The letterforms are Jost (SIL Open Font License), the open geometric equivalent of Futura. Outstanding: the typeface of the parent Maintenance logo is not yet confirmed — if it proves to be true Futura, the mark should be regenerated from a licensed copy.

5. Imagery

- One image per page, at most. The site is text-first by design.
- Full-bleed shallow band, roughly 2:1. Never a tall hero image.
- Real buildings we manage, or illustration. No stock photography of hard hats, handshakes or glass towers.
- Do not name the building, in the caption or in the alt text. Alt text is indexed even though nobody sees it.
- Compress to WebP, set explicit width and height, lazy-load anything below the fold.

6. Tone of voice

DO

State the standard plainly and let the reader draw the conclusion.

Write about what good management is, not about what we sell.

Use specifics — a date, a regulation, a number — over adjectives.

DON'T

Claim to be leading, trusted, passionate or bespoke.

Name clients, describe our size, or imply a track record we do not have.

Attack competitors. Roughly four in five pieces should be constructive.

7. Page conventions

- Every page: unique title under 60 characters, meta description 140–155 characters.
- Every page ends with a single contact prompt. One call to action per page, never two competing.
- Articles carry a category tag, a byline of "The Good Management Company", and three related posts at the foot.
- Structured data: LocalBusiness on the home page, FAQPage on the FAQ, BlogPosting on every article.

- Focus states must remain visible. Body text must hold a 4.5:1 contrast ratio against its background.

8. Governing the rules

All values live in tgmc-styles.css as custom properties. Change a colour or a size there and it changes everywhere. A page that needs a value not in that file is a page that needs a conversation, not a one-off override.
